

The Grimoire of Beatrice or Proposing a Collective Thought Experiment, "Beatrice" By Frater CyberLord

"In magick to have said is to have done; to affirm and will what ought to be, is to create." - Eliphas Levi

Introduction

I would like to ask all (who read this) to help me in an online thought experiment based on the infamous "Phillip experiment" of 1972. (Link, Wikipedia)

https://youtu.be/MzNxHLe1_SQ - Video of Phillip Experiment

I'm not saying we're doing an online "seance" to create another "creepypasta" or "slender man" situation. The principles, though, are similar.

We want to explore the Tibetan Buddhist concept of tulpas, or thoughtforms, the practice of "willing" tangible forms into existence using our own innate mental energies. In Western mysticism, they are often referred to as Artificial Elementals, created by the practitioner using the natural archetypal elements of Earth, Air, Fire, and Water.

Types of Thoughtforms

There are varying definitions and perspectives on servitors, egregores, and tulpas, leading to some overlap and ambiguity. However, key distinctions can be drawn:

- Servitors: These are semi-autonomous thoughtforms created to perform specific tasks for their creator. They are essentially interactive spells designed to carry out repetitive or complex functions without possessing independent will or sentience. A nympho, a type of servitor specifically designed for sexual pleasure, is an example. Servitors are created with a clear purpose and are intended to be subservient to their creator's will.
- Egregores: These are fully autonomous beings. Unlike servitors, they are not directly controlled by their creator. Egregores are often collective entities formed by the combined energies and beliefs of multiple individuals around a shared idea or concept. They can grow in power and evolve independently, potentially exceeding the creator's initial intentions. A tulpa can be considered a low-level egregore in some perspectives.

- Tulpas: These are often described as low-level egregores that function similarly to servitors. They are created by embedding a fragment of the creator's personality into a thoughtform. This gives them a degree of autonomy and inherent capabilities, but also carries the risk of becoming independent and potentially harmful to their creator. They are sometimes seen as psychological constructs or ways to interact with different parts of the subconscious⁸. The creation process often involves focused mental energy and visualization, much like creating a servitor.
- In summary: Servitors are tools, egregores are beings, and tulpas are a type of egregore with a closer connection to their creator but a greater potential for independent existence. The distinctions are not always clear-cut, and the terminology can be used inconsistently across different magical traditions and texts.

Some believe that angels, demons, gods, or other spirits are psychological constructs—ways to communicate with different parts of our super-conscious mind or subconscious mind. Others see all spirits as thoughtforms, given form by human creativity.

“In contrast to thoughts living in their forms in the mental or spiritual sphere, the ‘elementals’ are entities with a certain degree of intelligence deliberately created by a magician. Such elementals are capable of fulfilling certain tasks on the mental plane... The genuine magician will always be inspired by good and noble intentions and keep the altruistic motive in mind if he is aiming at the highest level of magical maturity.” – “Initiation into Hermetics”, Franz Bardon

Beatrice is more of an egregore than a tulpa, in a sense.

Sports teams are a good example. Notice how the Washington Commanders are winning games now? When they were the Washington Redskins they were an embarrassment, constantly losing games. They lost the support of their many fans, and the fact that the term "Redskins" is a racial slur to Native Americans didn't help.

Now, because of the energy from the excitement, confidence, and optimism from the fans (and new management with new coaches) the team is having a renaissance. A fighting chance.

The Redskins egregore faded away. A new Commanders egregore is serving them well.

Tulpas and egregores are so similar. I just chose to use the term "tulpa" because it is more well known. I hope that this addresses any misunderstandings.

Creation

Designing Beatrice

Everyone is welcome to join in this online group of a variety of occupations and interests. None of us claim to have any “psychic” abilities or other paranormal affluence.

We will create a fictional character named Beatrice "Tris" Astra. To help, it may be better to write out her biography, to better envision Beatrice's identity in your minds, here are the interesting details.

Beatrice's History

She is a young woman that is a systems analyst and developer for a major online platform, who's originally from the Washington, D.C. Area. Likewise, she grew up in a working-class family and due to her aptitude for tech, she was able to secure a full scholarship to a major university. She lives a well-off life being a digital nomad, traveling frequently between Europe, Asia, and the Caribbean. She has not forgotten her humble upbringing and is willing to help others. Not only that, but she contributes to and volunteers at several charities.

One day, Beatrice came upon a homeless encampment at a park in D.C. and met a man named Marcus, with whom she fell madly in love. She saw potential in him and helped him get back on his feet.

She caught him cheating on her. Beatrice actually thought he was "the one" for her. She would have married him if he proposed.

Beatrice then became depressed. She buries herself in her work. Despite many offers, she refuses to get into another relationship. Secretly, she is still a romantic and a reluctant optimist. Part of her still sees the positive in people.

Physical Description

The servitor must appear in a shape and form suited to the task. I think that the servitor should be "human looking", classy, smart, have business sense but radiates sensuality at the same time. Maybe an attractive librarian or teacher perhaps?

These pics should be a general idea of what we should aim for:

If these photos are considered offensive or too racy, I am open to suggestions, but I am adamant that the entity should look like a human female whose appearance embodies sensuality and intelligence. If there is anyone with strong artistic skills that can do better, please feel free to contribute!

Beatrice appears in the form of a young woman wearing glasses or contacts. She is 5'10", has dark brown hair with highlights, usually in a ponytail or a bun, brown eyes, and tanned skin. Her ethnicity/race is left ambiguous. Refer to the photos above.

Her business attire is usually a dress, a blouse and skirt, pantsuit, or a polo shirt and khaki pants (Think the staff uniform at Best Buy or Walmart). Her casual wear favors comfortable and practical clothing such as hoodies, sweats, yoga pants, jeans, and leggings. She is described as more conservative in her style choices. She sleeps in her pajamas, without underwear.

Personality

To describe the type of energy, mannerisms, and personality that she embodies, the following characters from popular culture are referenced:

- C.J. Cregg from the show "The West Wing" for professionalism.
- Chloe O'Brian from the show "24" for vulnerability, quirky disposition and loyalty.
- Abby Sciuto from the show "NCIS" for expertise, fun, but slightly dark attitude, empathy, and compassion.
- Rachel Tyrell from the infamous sci-fi movie "Blade Runner" for classic beauty, logic, and emotional innocence.
- Angela Bennett from the movie "The Net". She is a freelance systems analyst worker. All of her relationships are almost completely online and on the phone, with the exception of forgettable interactions with her neighbors and visits to her mother. (I admit that this character played by Sandra Bullock is a major source of inspiration for Beatrice.

Especially the fact the actress is from Arlington, VA, which is a part of the Washington, DC Area.)

- Janet from the show "The Good Place", "a celestial, programmed guide who acts as the main source of information, analogous to an intelligent personal assistant. She has infinite knowledge of the universe, can provide residents anything they desire, and details everything of what is happening in the Good Place but does have some flaws in trying to act more human.
- "Beatrice "Tris" Prior from the "Divergent Series" of movies. (By the way, I came up with Beatrice long before I saw these movies.)

I hope this helps you all understand the inspirations drawn on for facets of Beatrice's personality and behavior.

Construction

The Collective Creation

Take a moment, at least 5 minutes to 15 minutes (or longer if you spare it) to do this in a group of at least five people, in person or online. This is designed to be done online, especially through social media, to utilize the power of the collective.

Taking all of this information — the made-up history, the pictures, the story — the group will meditate on Beatrice. Visualize her appearing in your mind, concentrate as hard as you can, willing her to be. Try to “feel” her in the air.

We must define the purpose of the servitor is to help us in the realms of abundance/prosperity/wealth, romance/sex and personal development (increasing confidence/charisma etc.).

One tip from creating some very successful egregores, we should give it the option that when it's completed its task at a specific point in time or amount of success, you'll set it free as a self-directing being, set up a energy source for it (like starlight or something) and link it to something in nature as its base, like a local parkland or some woods (for the association of growth, fertility, and money), it's then working directly for her own interests as well as yours.

Last but not least, if possible, there should be a way to destroy or weaken the entity in case she gets out of control. A "Kill Switch" so to speak.

As a part of creating this entity, we should try to come up with a name and logo/sigil that is revealed to us so that we (or anyone else we share her with) may be able to call upon the entity.

I have already provided a logo/sigil that was revealed to me below.

There should be posts and descriptions from those who are able to interact with the servitor in dreams and those who are strong in evocation or invocation.

Statement of intent:

To help us acquire and maintain abundance/prosperity/wealth, find ideal partners for romance/sex life and foster positive self-improvement (increasing confidence/charisma, self-esteem etc.).

A paragraph or a point by point description of what we want our servitor to do:

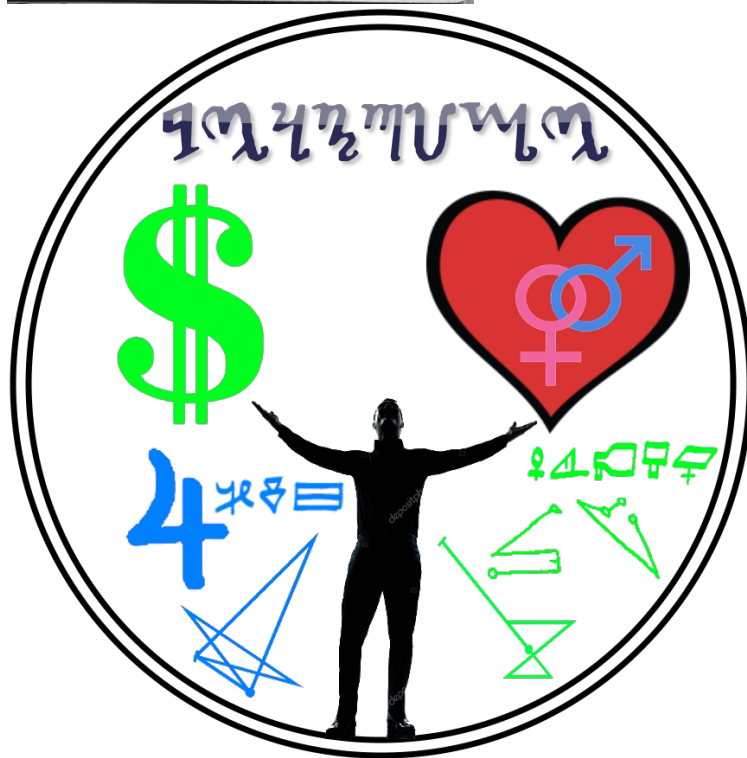

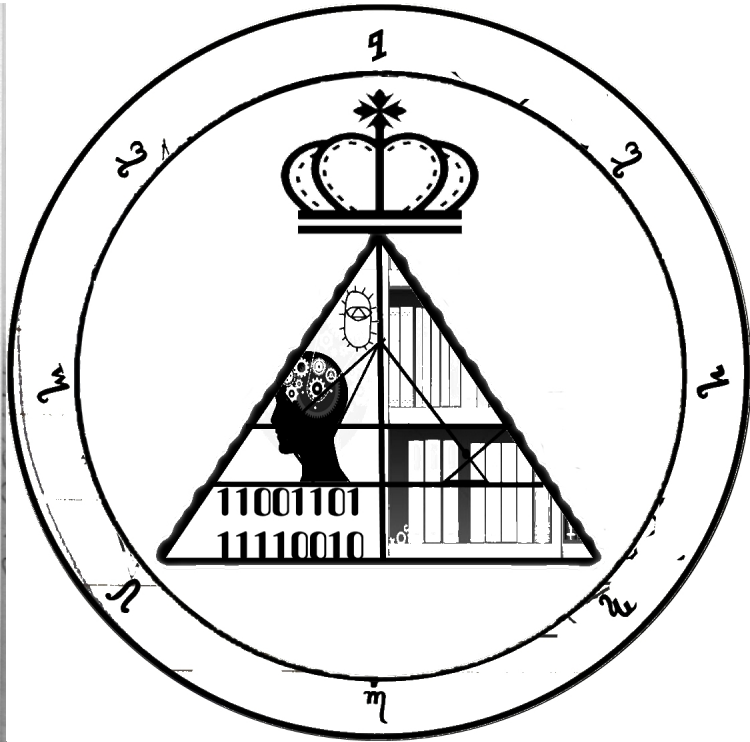

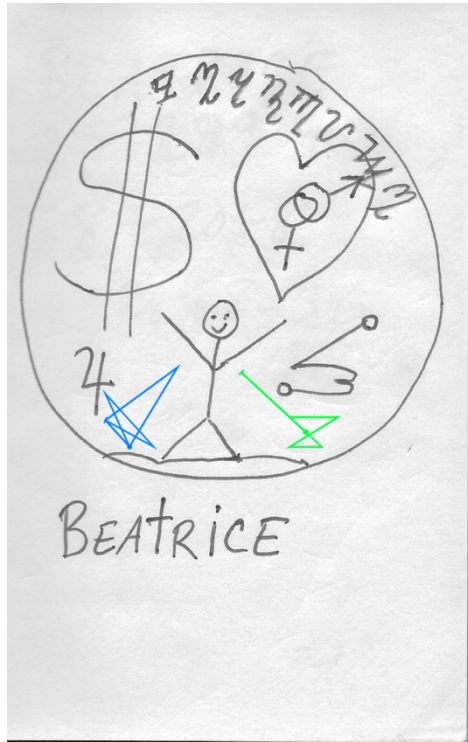

- Clear and open the paths in our life so that abundance can flow in our life.
- Find opportunities suited to our talents, abilities, and knowledge that allow us to acquire wealth.
- Help find the resources and tools to manage our finances, pay our debts and improve our credit score.
- Excite love and passion in the heart of our ideal partner.
- Help us acquire the confidence and "sexual magnetism" for attraction.
- Attract partners for a safe and happy sex life.
- Help us acquire and maintain charisma, charm, and positive self-esteem in general.

A personal drawing/image of our servitor which should be as complex as you can make it:

A point by point description of our servitor special powers or capabilities which should be apparent in our drawing/photos (don't worry about trying to make it perfect, you just want a good description of the creature that you are trying to create):

A simplified version of the descriptive picture that you have made, this is a symbol or 'logo/sigil' of our servitor:

The dollar sign represents money. The heart with the planetary symbols for Venus and Mars intertwined represent love, romance, and sex. The silhouetted figure with the arms outstretched represents confidence and vigor. "Beatrice" is written along the top in the Theban script. The blue planetary symbol for Jupiter is for finance and abundance. There is a green Venus logo/sigil of Hagiel for love and romance. There are two kamea (number squares) logo/sigils based on "Beatrice". The blue one is the Jupiter Logo/sigil and the green one is the Venus Logo/sigil. The name "Beatrice" represented in binary code. The brain with gears and books represent knowledge. The crown because she is the "Queen of Cyberspace".

I am aware that this (the original drawing) resembles a talisman. My artistic skills are not very good. If there is anyone with strong artistic skills that can do better, please feel free to contribute! If another logo/sigil has been revealed to you in your evocations/invocations and/or dreams, please share it! Entities can have more than one logo/sigil.

The name of our servitor at the bottom:

Beatrice

Charging

Now that we have created the effigy of our servitor, we need to bring it to life. In order to do this, we will be charging it with thought force which is essentially personal attention. Whether you believe in the psychological aspects of creating a different part of your personal psyche or whether you believe that you need to create a thought form of enough intensity so that it can eventually affect the material world, what we essentially need to do here to charge our servitor and to give it our concentrated attention.

We can either use the above images on a scrap piece of paper that we used to come up with our servitor or you can get another piece of paper and on it draw the logo/sigil of our servitor along with its name. Find a quiet place where you can be alone and put that piece of paper before you so you can see it.

Read through the written statement made during the Construction stage. Ideally, read this out loud, then read it mentally. Focus all your attention on the servitor's logo/sigil and know that birth is imminent.

Picture the servitor as vividly as possible, in a dormant state, with eyes closed. You imagine Beatrice sleeping and waking to full life. Picture your servitor with her eyes closed, awaiting birth.

Repeat the name of our servitor, Beatrice out loud three times. She will be aware of you.

You may want to place your hand on the servitor's logo/sigil to maintain a connection to it. Imagine that you are surrounded by light. As you breathe in deeply, imagine that you are breathing in that light. When you are filled with the light, say the servitor's name and breathe a breath of life and light onto the servitor's sigil. You can also picture the servitor being infused with this white light.

Repeat the name of our servitor, Beatrice and breathe life into her logo/sigil and her body three times.

As you breathe, the servitor blinks open her eyes. This may happen automatically, on the first breath, or you may need to will it, or imagine for yourself after the first breath.

When Beatrice's eyes are open, look into them. You will know her, and she will know you. In this moment you regard each other with respect, and Beatrice awaits your command.

The servitor's birth is complete.

Try to do this exercise for a good 10 to 30 minutes. I recommend that you do this exercise at least three times, on three different days, before you consider our servitor to be functional. The more times that you do this exercise, the stronger that our servitor will become, and the more powerful that its influence will be.

We are creating a servitor that will be around for a while then we could charge it initially and then recharge it every month or so depending on what we feels is necessary.

If it's a servitor that you will use once and then maybe use again in a few months or years, charge it, as usual, every time you need to use it.

Just the fact that people are giving her attention and using her should give her enough energy to perpetuate herself.

Casting

The final part of using our servitor is to give it its instructions in a concise way and send it out to do your bidding.

The best way to do this is to first charge our servitor until you have a good sense, a strong belief, that it is indeed alive before you (perhaps floating above its logo/sigil and name on that paper). Then once you are confident that it is there; call its name, give it its instruction, and send it on its way. You might say something like; "Beatrice go out and help me with my finances! GO!" And then point in the direction you want it to go.

Think of your servitor sort of like a pet that you have created or perhaps a computer program that you have created in order to do your bidding. Be strong and commanding in your tone whenever you address it and always remember that it works for you and not the other way around. If you ever see it fleeting around not acting in a way that you wanted to, order it to get back to work or tell it to make itself scarce until you need it.

Whether a psychological exercise or a truly alive astral being and thought form, your servitor will be able to accomplish amazing things if it is created correctly. Be creative in your creation and how you wish to accomplish your desires, this is a truly wonderful way to deal with some of the problems that you might have in your life and the sky's the limit as to what your servitor can do.

I modified the XaTuring Facebook Working October 2013 for:

A General Conjunction of Beatrice

Look at either logo/sigil posted above and invoke/evoke Beatrice:

Envision yourself in a vast library filled with shelves of books or a large data center filled with servers and terminals or cascading symbols and numbers like in the “Matrix” movie. This is the infamous Akashic Records or Hall of Records on the astral realm.

While still looking at the logo/sigil, envision the Internet as a further extension of this network. Your computer/smartphone/tablet/etc. are your interfaces, extending aspects of yourself into the network. You are part virtual, and on the network, you exist in non-linear time.

You see a young woman, professionally dressed sitting at an Information Desk/Kiosk. She turns to you, smiles and asks, “How may I be of assistance?” or “May I help you with something?”

Invoke Beatrice:

“Beatrice, my Librarian, and Assistant of Infinite Knowledge, please help me and accept my plea. My name is (your magical or birth name). I ask of you to hear my will! Accept my desires, please bring me luck and good fortune. Enrich my life with riches and prosperity. Send into my life love (or the love of 'person's name'). Enrich my heart with love and passion. By my bidding may it be so. By your power, it will be done. So mote it be!”

She will reply, “As you wish.” Picture her making gestures on a holographic screen that appears in front of her (like the scene in “Minority Report”). See the vivid 3-D images and cascading numbers and symbols on it as it and she descends back into the depths of the network where all things are connected. Let it fade into the darkness that is the primordial Void of great potential. (Fade to black.) Let it go and think no more of it.

Say: “So it is done!” and go about your day, focusing on other tasks.

When your requests have been granted, show gratitude to her. “I thank you, Beatrice, for coming to me. I welcome you into my life and into my dreams. Go now and be ready to come when I call you. May there be peace between you and I. So mote it be.”

Dismissal of Beatrice

Beatrice can be dissolved. This is not creating a sentient being and then kill it/erase it from existence if you don't like it. No one with a conscience would approve of creating a sentient person just to get rid of them later. At some point, if the attention to her fades away, she will naturally dissipate into nothingness or find another way to gather energy and become an egregore. Or, the only result from an experiment like this is that the participants would each create a tulpa that exists in their own head and would individually diverge from the base. Years ago, in the r/tulpas community, there were dozens of different "My Little Pony: Friendship is Magic" tulpas based on the same few characters.

Of course, everyone visualizes Beatrice in their own way. That's why I kept her description as general and vague enough with examples. All everyone has to do is agree on these basics, and whatever happens will happen.

This is your experiment. Feel free to add to it. Rewrite it. Let there be multiple versions of it! Spread it like a meme. Give Beatrice the same life that Pepe and Kek have. Be ethical. Use her wisely. Use her for positive intent to bring positive change.

To those who disagree with this experiment, you don't have to participate. Thanks but no, thanks.

Thank you.

Final Words

This is your experiment. This is your grimoire. Add to it. Rewrite it. Let there be multiple versions of it! Spread like a meme. Give Beatrice the same life that Pepe and Kek have. This is your servitor. Use her wisely. Use her for positive intent to change the world. To help the evolution of humanity towards our true destiny, to become Gods! Let Beatrice and others like her to help us with the mundane issues of finance, love, sexual fulfillment and a positive self-image. Things that are holding us back from our true power.

If the hope is that future generations of humanity will finally be able to travel among the stars, “To see out new life and new civilizations, to go where no one has gone before” as on “Star Trek” then we as a species need to find a way to get off this planet and out of this solar system. I hope that magickal servitors like Beatrice can help us out.

Or, we as humanity are so royally fucked indeed.
